

MUSEUM EDUCATORS
of Puget Sound

The Museum Educators of Puget Sound (MEPS) has created an online resource page to highlight the myriad of ways in which regional institutions are responding to the COVID-19 crisis. From lesson plans and videos, to craft ideas and lectures, “Museum From Home with MEPS” provides a central hub of resources created by Puget Sound area museums and institutions.

Museum From Home with MEPS was created out of the March 2020 meeting, where members elected to create a central page to link to each other’s work. Initially, this resource was intended to support museum educators and provide a space to share resources and collaborate. As the situation has developed, this webpage has become a hub of resources for the larger educator community, including teachers and caregivers.

If you are interested in submitting your organization’s digital engagement efforts to the list, please email a working link and a short description to museumeducators@gmail.com.

Museum Educators of Puget Sound is composed of educators from the region’s many cultural, arts, historical, zoological and scientific institutions. Our mission is to share the educational resources of our institutions with each other and the community.

As Western Washington’s primary professional organization for museum educators, MEPS:

- Encompasses a geographic area including Seattle, Bellevue, Tacoma, and communities of the Puget Sound region.
- Organizes regular meetings, networking opportunities and professional development.
- Serves as a forum to share and discuss current initiatives, ideas and needs of the professional community.
